

Continuing breastfeeding while going back to work?

Your rights as a breastfeeding mother according to the labour law *

- You have the right to breastfeed your child during working hours.
- You have the right to the time necessary to express your breast milk during working hours.
- During your baby's first year of life, breastfeeding your child or expressing during working hours is considered as paid working time:
 - at least 30 minutes for a working time of up to 4 hours per day
 - at least 60 minutes for a working time of over 4 hours per day
 - at least 90 minutes for a working time of over 7 hours per day
- You have the right to organise these breaks according to your child's needs.
- You have the right to take these breaks both within and outside the company.
- You have the right to suitable facilities with a comfortable chair and the possibility to store the expressed milk in a cool place.

Talk early with your superior about your intention to continue breastfeeding your child or to express milk at work. The support of your superiors is very important.
